MISSIONARIES HERE HAMPERED BY POOR HEALTH

Dr. W. W. Peter Says Death Rate Is Inexorably High In Missions

ADVISORY COUNCIL MEETS

Two Day Session At China Inland Mission Concluded

Reports from five provincial Educational Associations, devotional services led by Rev. Luther Freeman, a talk on "The Need for Health Education in China" by Dr. W. W. Peter, and a discussion of the phonetic script led by Miss S. J. Garland featured yesterday's session of the China Christian Educational Association Advisory Council, which has just concluded a two-day convention at the China Inland Mission Hall.

Christian mission work, Dr. Peter stated, is the largest foreign undertaking in China, both in point of view of numbers employed and of money invested. Over 6,000 missionaries are on duty and at least ten million dollars are spent yearly in maintaining their work.

"From the health standpoint, the missionary army in China today is about as fit to fight as the American army back in the days of the Spanish-American War, when preventable diseases killed more soldiers than enemy bullets," Dr. Peter said. "That is to say, in our army of 6,000 we suffer a far higher rate of death from preventable diseases than is necessary. Do you know that five percent of the deaths of missionary children have been due to small-pox? Or that of twenty-six missionaries of one board twelve have been smitten with this disease, and that small-pox is 260 times as prevalent among missionary children in China as compared with the United States? Or that we have suffered in our missionary army from 127 cases of typhoid, which have actually been recorded, showing about twenty-nine percent deaths?"

REASON FOR CONDITIONS

"Perhaps it is the general absence of strong convictions in our missionary army on the necessity for health conservation which explains some of the conditions prevailing in our mission schools. If I had my way about it, I would never enter a mission school by the front door. I take it for granted that it has a good path flanked by flowers and sweet-smelling plants, leading to a well-lighted hall and reception room. I prefer to enter mission schools by the kitchen route. I always learn more. Sometimes I need a flash-light and bottle of smelling-salts, but I get the facts."

Dr. Peter stated that many promising students in mission schools have lost their lives through lack of proper sanitary conditions. He advised medical and physical examinations, compulsory vaccination, windows squalling twenty-five percent of the floor space, good bathing facilities, and properly organized play.

More than 1,500 government schools have sent for the literature published by the Council on Health Education, of which Dr. Peter is secretary. During the past eleven months, the Council has distributed health literature amounting to 3,425,054 pages, prepared 7,633 charts, and acquired 26,000 feet of propaganda film. Dr. Peter expressed his gratitude to the Christian Educational Association for its help in carrying out the objects of the Council.

British Rail Bill Satisfies Companies

(Reuters Service)
London, May 3.—In the House of Commons today, Sir Eric Geddes, Minister of Transport, in the course of an important announcement bearing on the future of British railways, stated that an agreement between the Government and the railway companies had been embodied in a new Railway Bill, which would also provide for the grouping of railways. The bill, he said, had already been widely endorsed by all the interests concerned.

The Minister added that it had been arranged to pay the railway companies £51,000,000 in settlement of the various claims under the wartime agreements. The Government's possible liabilities had recently been assessed by a departmental committee at £156,000,000.

Old Bill, Bremner Up, Champion Prize Is Biggest Ever Paid Here

Bremner, Who Piloted Old Bill To Victory

Mr. S. B. M. Bremner, of Messrs. Albert and Company, who rode the winner in The Champions, Mr. Bremner, who comes of an old Shanghai family, has ridden in the local races for some years. His first big win was in the Derby, in 1913, when he rode The Trader.

Beautifully Gowned Women Divide Honors With Old Bill

Taffeta Finishes Close Second

BY ELSIE MCCORMICK
We know now why they call it the Champion Sweepstakes. It swept away all the stakes we put up on it. But then we learned enough about the new spring styles to justify writing to Mr. Vogue, editor of the Vogue Magazine and telling him that he ought to apply to Shanghai for advance fashion information.

Sartorially speaking, it was a spectacle to make the rainbow look as faded as a printed voile after the amah has washed it; and if there is such a thing as a "riot of color," somebody should have turned in a riot call. Though more than one set of 1921 trimmings were built on an 1870 chassis, nobody would have guessed it except the census-taker. All the women at the race course yesterday hovered somewhere between sixteen and thirty. The only way you could pick out the older ones was by the fact that they wore their skirts shorter than the others.

Shanghai's mixed weather led to a display of every type of costume. Apparently about two-thirds of the feminine population voted that it was Spring and decked themselves in the arcadian fashion of musical comedy milk-maids, while the other third voted that it was still Winter and appeared in serge and wool. One lady, robed in a rich ermine scarf, clung to it valiantly as the mercury mounted and the humidity overpowered the atmosphere, finally wearing it from the field in a glow of victory and perspiration. There were numerous severe street-suits and sports costumes;

Silver Streak And The Hawk Second And Third In Big Event Of Spring Meeting; Day One Of Sunshine And Excitement; Johnstone And Hill Place

Mr. S. B. M. Bremner rode the pony Old Bill to a great victory yesterday in The Champion Sweepstakes, adding a brilliant achievement to his own record as a rider as well as to that of Mr. Oxley Cumming's plucky pony. A crowd, probably larger than any that ever before gathered at the course, saw the race and the weather conditions were all that might be desired, though the track was still rough from the churning of the preceding two days of rain.

It was a noteworthy race from start to finish and the contest between the favorites in the final stretch was one of the keenest ever fought out on the course. The result of the big race carried no surprises, although Mr. Day's Shenkold, which was ridden by Mr. C. R. Burkill, had figured strongly as second choice favorite with the pari-mutuel ticket buyers, and the pony failed to score a place.

VICTORY CLEAN CUT

The victory was clean cut as Old Bill finished a full three lengths ahead of Silver Streak, which was ridden by Mr. John Johnstone, and Silver Hawk, which was ridden by Mr. Hill. The Hawk, ridden by Mr. William Hill in third place. Twelve ponies were entered in the race.

The favorites with the ticket buyers, as shown in the pari-mutuel records, were Silver Streak, Shenkold, Old Bill and The Hawk in the order given. All through the day the dividends ran low and that paid on Old Bill in the big race was one of the largest. It was $38.30.

THE RACE

The ponies got off closely bunched after three false starts. Just before entering the turn Silver Streak cut across ahead of the field into first place with Wilson in second place and the others just behind closely bunched. The field went around the turn in this order and in passing the quarter Victoria, ridden by Mr. White, went into the lead and Djemnah, ridden by Mr. Dalgarino, went into second place. Silver Streak was then running third.

SWEEPS A RECORD

Due to limitations of the equipment used in drawing numbers in the sweepstake the sale of tickets on The Champions was stopped early in the afternoon when 40,000 tickets had been sold, the biggest total on record. This brought disappointment to hundreds of buyers who had elected to wait until the final hours in which to get their tickets. It was estimated that all of 5,000 more tickets might have been disposed of up to the time of the drawing which was held just before the start of the seventh race. The posting of the numbers brought a pause while close-packed throngs gathered in hopeful expectation as the numbers went up.

It was reported last night that the first prize of $201,600, the record in Shanghai, had been won by a Chinese merchant. Second prize, it was stated, had been won by a Hankow ticket holder and the third prize also was won by a Chinese.

It was stated that yesterday's big race marks the final appearance as a rider of Mr. John Johnstone, who was on Silver Streak and who shortly is returning to his home in England. The final victory of Mr. Johnstone's long record came with the running of the Shanghai Derby on

ANTI-OPIMUM MEN HERE ASK GENEVA FOR LEGISLATION

League Delegates Requested To Restrict Exportation Of Drug To China

MANY NOTABLES SPEAK

Judge Lobingier, Mr. Blanco And Ex-Minister Woo San Among Speakers

Judge Charles S. Lobingier, of the United States Court for China; Mr. A. E. Blanco, director of the Anti-opium Association in Peking, and Mr. Woo San, ex-Minister of Justice of the Canton Government, were the principal speakers at the annual meeting of the International Anti-opium Association yesterday, held at the Y.M.C.A.

New officers for the ensuing year were elected. Mr. C. C. Nieh, chairman of the General Chamber of Commerce, was selected president. The reports of the secretary, Mr. Isaac Mason, and the treasurer, Mr. Y. C. Tong, were adopted unanimously. Upon motion of Dr. H. C. Mei, which was seconded by Mr. Y. C. Tong, a vote of thanks was tendered to the outgoing secretary, Mr. Mason, who is leaving on furlough, as well as the Chinese secretary, Mr. Y. F. Ling.

LOBINGIER SPEAKS

Judge Lobingier pointed out that there had been some fear on the part of the anti-opium enthusiasts in Peking and elsewhere that the Zionists would plant poppy in Palestine. The Zionists were idealists, he said, and it was not likely that these idealists would bring such evil to the Holy Land.

The judge emphasized the necessity of an educational campaign against the evil among the young Chinese. If the youths are brought to realize the man-power that had been wasted through opium smoking, the evil would soon be stamped out. The attitude of the public formerly was rather indifferent. It was a question of their own lookout whether or not they wanted to smoke opium. But it was different now. When one member smoked opium or used morphia, everybody else was concerned.

LEGISLATION URGED

Mr. Blanco, after describing the enormous quantity of morphia being stored in Tokyo and Yokohama ready for immediate delivery upon payment, suggested that the society cable the Chinese Anti-opium Delegate to the League of Nations, urging him to appeal to the other delegates to modify the legislation of their respective governments so that the "exportation of opium and morphia from them to China may be stopped."

This was later acted upon by the meeting and a committee consisting of the Rev. J. W. Crofoot and Mr. Y. F. Ling was appointed to send the cablegram. The meeting further passed a resolution to join with the Missionary Association in sending a cablegram to the United States Congress urging strict legislation on the exportation of morphia and other narcotic drugs.

Mr. Woo San emphasized the importance of making representations to the militarists in the different provinces, who are forcing their soldiers to plant opium.

The list of officers elected at yesterday's meeting is as follows: President, Mr. C. C. Nieh; Vice Presidents, Monsieur H. Wilden, Judge C. S. Lobingier and Dr. C. T. Wang; Treasurer, Mr. Y. C. Tong; Honorary secretary (Foreign), Rev. F. Rawlinson; Executive Committee: Dr. F. C. Tong, Dr. H. C. Mei, Dr. C. J. Davenport, Rev. J. W. Crofoot, Rev. Isaac Mason, Mr. Geo. A. Fitch, Mr. J. Whitized, Dovey, Mr. E. S. Little, Mr. S. J. Woodbridge, Mr. G. McIntosh, Mr. E. Lobingier, Mr. H. P. Sallor, Mr. J. A. Heal, Mr. S. S. Funk, Mr. See Vee-wai, Mr. Jabin Hsu, Mr. Lung Yue-cheong, Mr. Cheng Chun-sheng, Mr. Shao Jen-chieh, Mr. Sung Hsin-ching and Mr. T. W. Shen.

The report of the secretary, Mr. Mason, follows: "As Dr. C. T. Wang felt unable to accept the presidency of our branch, Dr. F. C. Tong was elected by the executive committee, and has been in office during the year. Mr. Li Chih-fan was unable to continue to act as Chinese secretary. It was decided to pay for part time of the Chinese secretary, Mr. Heia Chih-feng was appointed, but he left suddenly for Europe, and Mr. K. L. Yu was appointed in his stead.

Ten meetings of the executive have been held during the year; besides this, a few members of the committee have given largely of their time and efforts, especially at the investigations into local

Canadian Paper Criticises Rowell For Treaty Stand

(Reuters Service)
London, May 3.—A Toronto message states that the Montreal Star severely criticises Mr. Newell W. Rowell, former President of the Privy Council of Canada, for publicly advocating the non-renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The paper points out that, if Great Britain refused to renew the alliance, Japan might turn to Soviet Russia or Germany, or both of them.

The paper goes on to say that while Canada should make sure, preferably through private channels, that she is not bound to any program which would require her to commit suicide for the sake of the Japanese, she must also recognize that the defense of the Empire involves widely-scattered interests, and that Canada is not entitled to insist that every question in which she is more or less concerned must be treated as a Canadian question exclusively.

London, May 3.—Six Sinn Feiners killed and 14 wounded, and two soldiers wounded in the casualty list resulting from a fierce five-hour fight near Galbally, county Limerick, between Sinn Feiners and Crown forces.

London, May 3.—In the House of Commons today at question time, Mr. Austen Chamberlain declared that the Government had not sent any message to Sinn Fein, nor had it authorized anybody to open negotiations on its behalf.

ALLIES PREPARING TO TAKE RUHR DISTRICT; GERMANS MAY YIELD

Plans For Military Action, Submitted By Foch, Approved By Supreme Council—U.S. Attitude Proves Great Blow To Berlin

(Reuters Service)
London, May 3.—A communique issued this afternoon that the Supreme Council has examined, with Marshal Foch, Admiral Lord Beatty, Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, Admiral Grasset (France), General Magliani (Belgium), General Mariotti (Italy), and General Watanabe (Japan), the coercive military and naval measures to be applied to Germany if she continues in default of her obligations.

The plan for the occupation of the Ruhr district has been approved. The sanction, should the necessity arise, will comprise naval measures, which are still being considered.

Contrary to expectations, the Supreme Council did not terminate its labors this evening. There will be another meeting tomorrow.

Reuters learns from a French source that Marshal Foch submitted to the Conference the details and conditions under which, if necessary, the occupation of the Ruhr district will be undertaken, with the co-operation of all the Allies, immediately the French troops recalled to the colors are ready, and that the military plan was entirely agreed upon.

Admiral Beatty and Admiral Grasset detailed the naval operations which might be carried out by the British and French fleets if deemed necessary. These will include either a blockade of Germany or the occupation of Hamburg in co-operation with the land forces.

U.S. AGAIN INVITED

The Conference this morning also approved a telegram to the United States Government, inviting it to be again represented on the Supreme Council, the Conference of Ambassadors and the Reparations Commission.

Furthermore, the Conference took note of the commercial results of the economic sanctions approved at the recent London Conference, which are described as most satisfactory. The receipts of the Allied customs on the Rhine amount to 150,000,000 paper marks a month, or a total of 500,000,000 gold marks in one year.

London, May 3.—Nothing is known in British official quarters of a new German Note to the United States. It is thought the report that there is one must refer to Germany's recent message to America, amplifying the proposals of the German Note of April 24. There is no news of any new German proposals.

Berlin, May 3.—The definite and emphatic nature of the rejection of the German note by the United States has created a great depression in Berlin, where the reply is regarded as a sharp rebuff.

The Cabinet has met to discuss the situation and it is reported that the Cabinet may follow Washington's advice and make a fresh direct offer to the Allies. The feeling generally is one of embittered resignation. It is further hinted that the reply may now influence the acceptance of Dr. von Simons' resignation.

Berlin, May 3.—A grave insurrection has broken out in the Polish part of Upper Silesia, and the Inter-Allied Commission has proclaimed martial law throughout a great part of Upper Silesia. Tanks and troops are also being concentrated in the principal centers of disorder.

It appears that on the occasion of the Polish National feast day insurgents crossed the frontier and occupied Butten, Katowitz and Tarnowitz, where serious shooting occurred.

BRIDGES DESTROYED
A number of railway bridges between Oppeln and Karisat have been destroyed.

Another report declares that the insurgents numbered 20,000 irregulars, who are engaged in fierce fighting with the German plibiste police.

London, May 4.—It is stated on good authority that a new German offer to the Allies was telegraphed from Berlin yesterday to the German Ambassador at Paris for transmission to the Reparations Commission.

The offer is believed to approximate to the acceptance of the Allied decisions at Paris at the end of January. It is presumed that the offer will be placed before the Supreme Council today.

Washington, May 3.—Secretary of State Hughes in a Note despatched on Monday evening, informed Dr. von Simons, the German Foreign Minister, that the German counter-proposals were unacceptable as a basis for the discussion of reparations. He urged Germany to make further proposals direct to the Allies, and reiterated the honest desire of the American Government for a prompt settlement of "this vital question."

London, May 3.—A communique issued tonight shows that the Supreme Council sat for five hours this evening, and came to a complete agreement as to the substance of the communication to be addressed to Germany.

The drafting committee is drawing up a protocol tonight, which the Reparations Commission due from Paris tomorrow morning, will send. The protocol is to be despatched not later than May 6, and the German reply is due at the latest by midnight on May 12.

Germany will be called upon to pay £100,000,000 annually, plus a 25-percent exports tax, and also £6,750,000,000 in bonds, now and in due course, bearing 5 percent interest, with a sinking fund of one percent. It is estimated that each series of bonds will be redeemed in 27 years from the date of issue. Interest is to be charged to Customs or other revenues acceptable to the Reparations Commission. The bonds are to be distributed among the Allies in proportions already fixed.

Of the aforementioned bonds, £800,000,000 are to be issued now, £1,900,000,000 in November, and the balance of £4,250,000,000 is to be issued in accordance with Germany's capacity to pay, of which the standard will be the product of the 25 percent export tax.

The amount required for the service of the £2,500,000,000 of bonds issued now and in November will be £150,000,000.

If the £100,000,000 annuity and the exports tax receipts exceed the current interest requirements, further bonds are to be issued to absorb the surplus.

An additional one percent exports tax, making 26 percent to be charged, is earmarked as interest on unsold bonds for £150,000,000, due to Belgium in respect of war expenditure borrowed from the Allies, and chargeable to Germany, being included in the total of the foregoing bonds.

London, May 4.—With regard to the proposed measures against Germany, it may be recalled that the Peace Treaty provides for a 15 years' occupation of the Rhine, but the new terms extend the period indefinitely until Germany pays and further the occupation of the Ruhr basin falls to bring the Germans to their senses.

The naval penalties are likely to include the warships anchoring at Hamburg, Lubeck, Stettin and Bremen with their crews for patrolling the quays to enforce the customs.

The Allied statesmen are highly satisfied at the results of the conference. The scheme for the payment by Germany by means of guaranteed bonds was mainly the work of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Loucheur, and French circles have full confidence in it. Mr. Loucheur declared yesterday that the bonds would be the international money of the future.

Tientsin Parleys To End In Few Days

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 4.—It is officially learned that the Tientsin conference will close within a few days. While the full results of the conference are not yet known, two important developments have occurred. First, Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun are undertaking to remit to the Government a portion of the provincial revenues which the provinces recently withheld on the ground that they had to meet arrears of military expenses. Thus the Government hopes to raise the revenue to the five million dollars necessary to meet running expenses under the Premier's retrenchment plan. Secondly, Wang Chan-yuan has ordered the Hupei authorities to expedite the elections. It is expected that Yunnan, Szechuen, Kweichow, Kiangsi and Hunan will follow Hupei's lead in both these undertakings. Chang Tso-lin will proceed to Mukden, Tsao Kun to Paoingfu and Wang Chan-yuan to Peking after the conference. Wang Chan-yuan reporting to the President as the representative of Tsao Kun and Chang Tso-lin.

It is announced that the Government does not desire civil war and that the proposed expedition against Canton will remain in abeyance.

The Local Self-Government Conference opened at Peking today.

Commons Vote New Consular Buildings For Cities In China

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 3.—In the House of Commons today, on the vote for Consular buildings and residences in the Far East, Sir Frederick Banbury inquired as to the necessity for spending £53,515 on the acquisition of a site and the erection of a new consular building at Tientsin £32,000 on rebuilding the Consul-General's house at Canton £20,000 for rebuilding the consular offices and assistants' quarters at Canton, and £27,000 for the erection of a new Consulate and residence at Harbin.

Sir John Gilmour, replying on behalf of the Government, said that as regards Tientsin, all medical opinion had decided against the occupation of the present building. A sum of £9,955 was required this year for the acquisition of the ground, but the sale of the present ground was expected to realize £37,500 against the necessary expenditure for the new quarters. He thought that was a fair and reasonable proposition. As regards Canton, he pointed out that severe floods had swept off many of the buildings at Shamen. He assured the hon. member that the work of reconstruction was being carried out as economically as was commensurate with the dignity of our position.

Wood Says U.S. Has New Trade Policy

rank of the commercial and maritime nations of the world; the purpose of the new Administration to establish a definite commercial policy; the way in which America is facing her post-war problems. General Wood also paid a glowing tribute to the American Legion. "The American Legion represents today the real spirit of American citizenship," he declared.

The general began by expressing his pleasure at being the guest of the American community of Tokyo and Yokohama. Referring to his voyage he said that "the perils of the deep to which allusion has been made were nothing more serious than a minor accident to one of the ship's pumps."

"At home," he said, "we are slowly getting back to normal after the war."

Of course we are entered in the competition for our share of the world's commerce. We are building up a great merchant marine. The Westcoast, the first of a new service of liners, will be, I hope, only the forerunner of many more fine vessels like her. We hope to bring back to that flag which was once foremost among the flags which float over merchant vessels on every sea that share of the world's trade that rightfully belongs to it.

"This is a period of readjustment, of rigid economy, of careful business enterprise. Among the most hopeful indications in the new situation are those which point to the establishment by our President of a real commercial policy for the United States. We have never had one. Our commercial representatives abroad have been left pretty much to shift for themselves. Now our Government realises the need for closer relations between itself and those who represent 'the nation's commercial interests' abroad. Before the war much of the progress made by Great Britain and Germany in foreign commerce was due to the fostering policy of their governments. In their embassies, legations and consulates all over the world were men trained in their jobs and with expert knowledge of the commerce and institutions of the lands in which they served. To that policy we are coming. I believe that the policy has now taken root in the United States and that it will grow."

"American commerce and agriculture are the real bases of American prosperity. At home one of our most vital problems now is getting the men back on the land. Among men who till the land which they themselves own there can be no red element. And here I wish to say that the red danger about which we hear so much these days is not so real as press reports would indicate. The red element is a cowardly and contemptible element; it never fights, it assassinates. The only danger from it lies in our own indifference."

"If I were asked to select a motto for the United States I should choose one of just two short words—'I serve.' That is the motto which should be that of every American, men and women together, for the women today enjoy equal rights and privileges in our country with the men. It matters little where we serve; it is how we serve that counts. It is that spirit of service that we want to give to America—service to our country coupled with fair and honorable competition with the rest of the world."

Captain Dollar was the first speaker of the evening. He was introduced by Mr. Kaufman, who prefaced his introduction of the speaker by a few remarks in welcome to the guests of the evening and also of the members of the American Association of Tokyo. He introduced Captain Dollar as one whose services to the cause of the extension of American foreign trade had been great.

Captain Dollar said that Americans in Japan today occupy a particularly interesting position. The eyes of the world are upon Japan today, he said. There is much talk and writing of war between Japan and the United States, but diplomatic action and kindly feeling will avert any possible rupture between the two countries. He closed with a reference to a banquet he attended in London recently at which he was called upon to speak just after Lord Robert Cecil had been heard. Following up Lord Robert's remarks he gave it as his opinion that the League of Nations was a fine ideal but impracticable, but he recommended one league that required no covenant nor treaties—the brotherhood of the Anglo-Saxon peoples. That union, he said, was sufficient to make war impossible.

The Waring Company

Shakespeare wrote at least 27 plays that we know of. Some of them were comedies; some of them were tragedies; some of them were historical-comedy-tragedies, or historical-tragedy-comedies. Each of the plays was good enough in itself to make the name of at least a dozen, or better still a score of writers. Of all his plays Shakespeare excelled in 'Hamlet' and 'The Merchant of Venice.' 'Hamlet' is actor proof. It has been said that few actors can go wrong in 'Hamlet.' But not so 'The Merchant of Venice.' The play calls for the most careful handling. The master musician took the human organ and played upon the keys of every emotion.

Last night the Waring Company produced the wonderful comedy. Their conception was extraordinarily interesting. The comedy was mounted in exquisite style. The second act simply demanded a big round of applause as the curtain rose. The players were all very much in earnest, and every member of the cast can be congratulated upon his or her portrayal. But—

It is after midnight. To do Shakespeare, the players, or the audience justice, more time and a great deal more space is needed than is at my disposal and so I crave your indulgence and the Editor's permission to reserve details for the 'Maskee' column tomorrow.

Tonight 'The Choice' will be produced. It is worthy of note that Mr. Gerald Du Maurier trained the present players in the place and for three weeks they played at Wyndham's Theatre, London. Miss Sherwin did so well in the big part, that pressure was brought to bear upon her to stay in Town. She is here and I have no doubt that we will be just as discriminating as were the playgoers in London. DOMINO.

Presbyterians May Have Women Elders

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 3.—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of England which was opened at Newcastle today is a momentous one for two reasons—in the first place, because proposals will be submitted to admit women to eldership and to authorise women "of gifts and consecration" to give addresses in church, and secondly from the fact that the Archbishop of York addressed the Assembly.

His Grace had a remarkable ovation when he submitted the Bishops' appeal for the re-union of Churches which was the outcome of last year's Lambeth Conference. He repudiated the idea of absorbing the Free Churches. He said the Bishops thought that Free Churchmen could accept the Nicene Creed and the Communion Sacrament, leaving the question of the administration of communion as the most difficult field to be explored. The moderator of the Assembly is the Rev. Mr. Barclay of Formosa.

Banks Opposed To Credit Plan For East

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 3.—It is stated that Eastern Banking concerns are opposed to the scheme for the extension of credits in British India, and the British possessions in the Far East, including Hongkong, on the ground that the scheme would enable the Eastern importer to enter into fresh contracts with the British exporter through other channels than those having the knowledge of his possibly having dishonored bills running into large amounts.

SYLLABUS (By The Court)

1. Parties: Intervention, as a matter of right may be claimed only before trial but the Court is required to bring in other parties "when a complete determination of the controversy cannot be had" otherwise and authorised to substitute "another party for a plaintiff whose right to maintain the action is uncertain."

Fleming, Davies and Bryan for the demurrer.

P. H. B. Kent, Esq. for the party desiring to intervene.

On September 29, 1919 the "Russian Ministry of Food and Supplies" entered into a written contract (Exhibit A) with the defendant by which it undertook "to supply the Russian Ministry of Food and Supplies with Fifty Thousand (50,000) sheep pelts covered with khaki drill."

Subsequently a petition alleging the non-performance of said contract was filed by the present plaintiff alleging that he is "the lawful agent, attorney and liquidator of the Ministry of Food Supplies of the Russian Government." This averment was expressly denied in the answer, defendant further alleging—

"that the Russian Government one-time represented by the plaintiff no longer existed at the time when the petition was filed, that its Ministry of Food and Supplies has been dissolved and that the plaintiff is not entitled to sue for and on behalf of any Government or Ministry."

Defendant's contention (and this afforded the principal issue at the trial) was that plaintiff represented the so-called "Kolchak Government" which was already defunct at the time of the trial and which, we must take judicial notice, has been further obliterated by subsequent events. After the trial, but before the case could be taken up for disposition, a petition was filed by one Alexis F. Agareff, claiming to represent "The Provisional Russian Government of the Far East (Primorskaya Zemskaya Uprava)" which was alleged to be "the successor of the former so-called Omek or Kolchak Government" and asking leave to intervene. To this petition plaintiff presented a demurrer for insufficiency and on the further ground that the petition was out of time.

We cannot agree with plaintiff's counsel in their contention that the petition for leave to intervene "is in effect a bill of interpleader" for it bears no resemblance to that remedy as in vogue in this jurisdiction. And while intervention, as a matter of right, is available only "before trial" the Court is expressly required to bring in other parties "when a complete determination of the controversy cannot be had without" them. Moreover "substitution of another party for a plaintiff whose right to maintain the action is uncertain or non-existent may be made by leave of Court." It is clear therefore that the delay in intervention does not preclude the Court from admitting other parties where the situation seems to require it. And such is the situation which has developed as regards the case at bar. Here is a contract, made not with an individual but with the "Russian Ministry of Food and Supplies." We must take judicial notice of the fact that since the said contract was made there have been several successive Russian governments of that portion of the former Imperial Territory nearest this jurisdiction. Plaintiff intended to represent this "Russian Ministry of Food and Supplies" but now comes another party claiming a power-of-attorney from the same Ministry of the Government succeeding that with which the contract was made. Ought we to refuse him the opportunity to establish his claim merely because he failed to seek it "before trial" of which he states under oath he was not aware? In view of the numerous far reaching political changes which have occurred in recent months, both in and as regards Russia, including the withdrawal of recognition of Russian representation in China, we feel that it would be a serious mistake to deny such opportunity. This action involves a large amount of money—the prayer is for over Mexican $312,000.

Shrilly nothing should be left undone to see that this sum or anything approaching it is conserved for the party actually and legally entitled thereto. Surely also the defendant should not be exposed to the danger of paying the wrong party. In view of the extremely complicated situation with which this case is inseparably connected the only prudent course appears to be to allow the party seeking intervention to file his petition, setting forth his claims, giving both of the present several successive Russian governments of that portion of the former Imperial Territory nearest further evidence may be taken under the new pleading. The demurrer is accordingly overruled and the said Alexis F. Agareff is given ten days from the receipt by his counsel of notice of this order, to file his petition under oath, serving a copy thereof upon both plaintiff and defendant who will be allowed the usual time to answer the same.

By the Court, CHARLES S. LOBINGIER, Judge.

GEORGETTE WINS IN GOWN CONTEST

oversight and a delicate lavender sash achieving a unique finishing touch. Nor did any amateur design the pink georgette with blue-headed spider webs spun lavishly on its vital points. We would like to engage that spider to do a little spinning for us.

We likewise looked with envy on a blue tulle overdress through which holes had been gimped to show the foundation of henna georgette, the fruck being finished off with a large white collar.

THAT GOLD LACE

Another gown that was almost as inconspicuous as Wing On's when the lights are turned on consisted of black satin heavily draped with gold lace in a striking design. It rose to a climax in the form of a gold turban with hanging ends. A frock of pink georgette interrupted periodically by insets of slit lace showed what can be accomplished with some of Shanghai's raw materials.

As a general conclusion it might be stated that Old Bill and georgette crepe carried the day. Organdy and voile put in a few timid appearances, but were promptly relegated to the back row by the onrush of more popular materials. Lengths varied as much as goods, some of the skirts, having been frightened kneecap while others rallied valiantly round the ankles.

And there was one honest-to-goodness harem gown present! Not a camouflage variety achieved by an inner lining and a piece of elastic, but the real Oriental species that has to be put on like—well, anyway, that's the kind it was. We were so busy studying this feature that we don't remember much else about it, though a hazy impression seems to indicate that it was fashioned of tan satin.

SWEET LITTLE FEET

Some of the accessories were almost as striking as the gowns. There was one pair of footgear that came up high about the ankles with no visible means of entry. Those who had failed to guess correctly on the horses consoled themselves by trying to guess how the young lady got into her shoes. We couldn't decide whether the shoemaker built them on her feet for the occasion or if somewhere in the course of their geography was a piece of concealed elastic.

Then there was the lady who carried as her hand-bag a stuffed frog with legs that sprawled realistically and who caused much remark among those whose bags were conservatively beaded. There were several ladies who carried swagger sticks and at least one who wore a monocle. Some of them also included husbands among their accessories, though none of these were especially striking.

MEN LESS STRIKING

Men are in many ways more timid than women. They are much more afraid of being individual, for instance. Most of them dislike very much to stand out from the throng, which is exactly what a woman wants. Hence only one man was brave enough to hail the approach of summer by wearing white flannels, and we saw no white duck suits. We noted a yellow necktie with red dots and a red diagonal stripe that made us want to go home and take our temperature, but outside of that there was little disorder.

All the style wasn't on the Race Course, however. Grouped on benches outside the grounds were several ladies clad in bifurcated garments with short, unbelted jackets. They were accompanied by gentlemen wearing silk shirts slit up the sides according to the Directorate mode and round satin hats with conservative trimmings. These on-lookers remained by their posts until midnight at last convinced them that Old Bill had no intention of encoring his $200,000 dash.

Chauffeur Burned In Queer Accident

As the result of a weird accident on the Bund last night a Chinese chauffeur is in hospital suffering from serious burns.

The chauffeur drove his master to town early last evening and after arriving at his destination discovered that the gasoline tank had gone dry. Jumping into a ricksha, he rode to Tiendong Road for a supply. With a tin of the fuel sitting on the floor boards of the ricksha he started back to the central district. The top of the tin was open and as the ricksha bumped along the gasoline slopped over. As they crossed the garden bridge a trickle of it ran through the foot-boards and into the vehicle's lamp. There was a flash and instantly the ricksha was wrapped in flames. As the coolie dropped the shafts the tin overturned and the ricksha stood in a pool of fire, with a swarm of spectators collecting from all directions. Before he could escape from the circle the chauffeur was badly burned.

The new Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation Building as it will look when completed. The structure will be the largest and finest of its kind in the Far East. The British Minister is to lay the cornerstone of the building today.

The corner stone of the new Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation building at the corner of The Bund and Foochow road will be laid by His Excellency Sir Bellby Alston, K.C.M.G., C.B., British Minister to China, this afternoon, with the function beginning at 12:15 p.m.

Placing of the basket and laying of the stone by H. E. Sir Bellby Alston.

Speeches by Shanghai Manager Mr. G. H. Stitt, and others.

Reception of guests by Chairman Edkins, Chief Manager Stephen and Shanghai Manager Stitt.

Invitations have been issued to approximately seven hundred guests for the compound ceremony.

The guests will comprise leading consular, naval and banking officials and business men of Shanghai and China. His Excellency Vice-Admiral Sir Alexander Duff, K.C.B., commander-in-chief of the British China Station, and His Excellency Sir Edward Stubbs, K.C.M.G., governor of Hongkong, will be the principal guests.

STYLE TO BE NEO GREC

The new Hongkong bank building has a final design of even greater dignity and beauty than the preliminary plans. The style has been changed to Neo Grec. A very pleasing result is obtained by correct scales and proportions rather than the introduction of elaborate carving and sculpture. The keystone of the central arch at the main entrance will be carved to represent Agriculture, symbolising the source of all wealth, with Industry and Shipping over the two side arches.

The entrance hall will be the principal feature of the interior decoration. A dome of Sienna marble supported by Sienna marble columns with bronze capitals and bases, will span the hall, and the spandrels between the arches and the walls below and the whole dome above will be in rich mosaic.

A border surrounding the panel will contain quotations from Chinese classics, eight heraldic lions in gold, and geometric symbols in squares; the swastika signifying Good Fortune. Solomon's Seal, symbolising Wisdom, etc. The Signs of the Zodiac, will be shown on a dark blue ground with wide gold borders.

PRINCIPAL PANELS

The principal panels, eight in number, will have for their motifs, the Banking centers of the East and of the West.

London will be represented by figures of Britannia with trident and the British Lion; the City Arms, a symbolic figure of Thames, with model of ship, a background showing the House of Parliament and St. Paul's Cathedral. The heraldry will be of England, Scotland and Ireland.

Paris—Figures of the Republic with tablet inscribed "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity"; a figure of the Arts with statuette, city arms, a background view of the Seine and Paris, the Cathedral of Notre Dame. Heraldry will be of the arms of the Republic and the Fleur-de-lis.

New York—Bartholdi's figure "Statue of Liberty" enlightening the world; Hermes, the promoter of social intercourse and of commerce among men, with his symbols, winged hat and caduceus, the national arms.

Shanghai—Figure: Foresight or Sagacity with sextant; Symbol of the Yangtze River, figure representing Shipping, background The Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, and the Chinese Maritime Customs from the river.

Hongkong—Figure: British flag symbolic of its becoming a British Crown Colony in 1842; figure of Commerce, figure suggesting the Canton river; background, Chinese junk and view of Hongkong from the harbor.

Tokio—Figure: Learning; Symbols Youth, Progress with national emblem on shield; the Rising Sun, figure representing Science, with scroll and compass.

passes, background view of Tokio from the sea.

Calcutta—Figures: Mysticism; Philosophy, Trade with scales and heraldic shield with city's arms, background the Hugli river, High Court, etc.

WORK PROCEEDS RAPIDLY

The arrangement of the rooms for brokers, managers, private offices, etc., are practically the same in the revised plans, as they stood in the old. Walls and columns will be faced with marble. Ceilings will be of abrus plaster relieved by handsome electric lamps. A separate entrance to the saving department will be had from Foochow road.

Work on the new building has progressed rapidly. The foundations presented many difficulties, owing to the nature of the soil in Shanghai and the loads in the treasuries being variable; when full of silver the weight will be very great, but at times there may be only small quantities of silver stored. The weight of the central dome is also great. To provide against movement below these concentrated loads, piles 40 feet long were driven, and to equalise the pressure on the soil as far as possible the remainder of the site has also been piled but with wider spacing between the piles. The foundations consist of a reinforced concrete raft spreading the weight over the whole site. The main beams of this raft are seven feet deep.

The spans of many of the steel girders in the building are greater than commonly used in Shanghai, some being as much as 52 feet.

The superstructure is of steel frame construction with reinforced concrete floor slabs. The whole of the steel will be encased in brick work or concrete for protection against fire.

GREAT CRANES USED

The latest electric derrick cranes are being used to expedite the construction of the building. The steel ribs are 90 feet long, and the four cranes are so placed that there is not a point on the whole site which cannot be reached by either one or other of them. Steel stanchions, girders, and material generally are brought alongside by motor lorries and lifted and placed in position by the cranes without noise or interference with the work on the site.

The bank when completed will be equipped with all the most practical features of modern buildings, the architects having made a special study of similar buildings in England and the United States before completing their plans.

The Chinese Recorder

The Chinese recorder, May 1921. Published monthly by the Presbyterian Mission Press.

Glancing at the table of contents, one notes with pleasure that of the new contributed articles, all but one is from a Chinese pen, and that one is a continuation from last month. If anyone doubts the intelligence and the courage of the young leaders of Chinese Christianity, he will do well to read these articles. Many shades of feeling are expressed, and there are spots when they roar as gently as a sucking dove, but on the whole the note is one of confidence, of clear vision, and of a determination to speak the truth as the writer understands it.

The longest, ablest and most outspoken article is the first one, by Dr. Timothy Tingfang Lew, who holds positions as professor or lecturer in three Peking Colleges, and is editor of The Life, a new journal of Christian thought and practice. His present article is entitled "China's Renaissance—The Christian Opportunity." It consists of a careful review and analysis of the present movement in thought among the Chinese, which is undoubtedly of such a character as fully to deserve the name of "Renaissance"; and of a study of the relation of this movement to the Christian movement, and the possibilities contained in it. The first part of the treatment is marked by notable clearness and completeness of statement; and the second part contains a challenge to all who are interested in Christian progress in every line. We are told of the attitude of the leaders on the New Thought movement, the Renaissance, to Christian thought and practice, of their effect on Chinese Christians, of the need for a restatement of the Christian message in modern terms, for an end to the dogmatic method in teaching the message of the scientific attitude with reference to the traditions and conventions of the church, of the substitution of service for priestcraft, of the emphasis on the social gospel, of telling the whole truth to candidates for positions as Christian workers, and of thinking through the problem of internationalism in relation to Christian faith and service. There is hardly need to comment at all upon this program for discussion and action; the present reviewer can hear the readers gasp as they come to the surface.

The second article is hardly less a challenge. Dr. C. T. Wang writes on making Christianity indigenous in China. He speaks from a rich experience, and his words show us how some rather old chickens are coming home to roost. There is, for example, the story of his own father, who was a Christian clergyman. "He was given only $15 a month for his work and had to bring up a family of nine children. I need hardly tell you that I have had from childhood up very little regard for the missionaries who were responsible for such a short-sighted policy." There is of course another side to this tale, which all who are acquainted with the state of missions thirty years ago will understand; but it is well enough that the missionaries of the present day should have stated for themselves how the policy in question affected the rising generation of that day.

The remaining two articles are from Changsha, Hunan. Dr. Fung Chang discusses "Students Social Problems," and makes us realise vividly what the coming of new ethical notions may mean of inner revolution to young men and women. Mr. Chao Yun-wan discusses "A Chinese View of What Should Be the General Aim of Christian Work in Changsha." Here again are a number of useful and penetrating criticisms, and many of them constructive.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in civilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

NINGPO BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED

Three Day Celebration Will Mark Official Opening Of New Premises

The program will consist of music, a report of the chairman of the construction committee, speeches by the chairman of the association and prominent merchants and picture-taking.

Different kinds of programs will be staged for the three days immediately following the dedication. About 30,000 guests are expected to be entertained. The local officials and prominent Chinese and foreign residents are also invited.

Anti-Opium Men Here Ask Geneva For Legislation

Conditions of the smuggling and sale of opium. We have maintained friendly co-operation with the Shanghai municipal police, whose efforts we have much appreciated. One notable case of opium selling under the protection of an Italian was taken into court and gave useful publicity; although the consular court concerned gave a decision which to us was disappointing, yet the shops complained about were ultimately closed down.

"We have secured proofs of the sale of opium by a large number of shops in the French Concession, and have approached the authorities and secured their promise to take action. Something has been done in the direction desired, but more stringent action is called for."

SMUGGLING CONSIDERABLE

"The amount of opium smuggling is considerable, and it is to be feared that smuggling will continue so long as China permits the drug to be grown, and while there are Chinese so regardless of their country's welfare as to be willing to assist this pernicious traffic. Whatever may be said about the share of people of other nations, it is certain that smuggling could not be carried on to any large extent without the help of Chinese who either deal in it for gain, or smoke it for pleasure. Educative propaganda and appeals to the Chinese on moral and patriotic grounds are urgently called for."

"The association has helped to secure international action, and it is encouraging to see that a representative Committee of the League of Nations has been appointed to deal with the subject. But it cannot be too strongly insisted upon that China's case is very weak while she allows opium to be free to grow throughout the country, and in some places the military officials encourage farmers to cultivate it. Our association must arouse public opinion among Chinese, so that executive measures may be taken to eliminate the drug except for medicinal purposes."

TO LICENSE SALE

"Locally, the Shanghai Municipal Council, in view of the difficulty of securing proper control hitherto, has decided to require licenses for the sale of opium and other poisons, which are to be sold under the guarantee that they are for medicinal purposes only."

"While this system may be a good one it contains possibilities of abuse and unless it is carefully surrounded by safeguards may prove to be a backward step. The greatest danger connected with the plan however probably is that other places may also decide to follow this system and license the sale of opium nominally for medicinal purposes."

"There is still much work for this association to do, and the information gained through our past work will be valuable for further progress. But a healthy society must have a vigorous membership, and ours has unfortunately been allowed to dwindle away; a membership campaign is necessary to rally members, old and new, and to secure funds for the useful and necessary work which needs to be undertaken. A reasonable budget for the coming year should be within our possibilities; then with active secretaries and a small amount of paid clerical help, as well as the continued efforts of an enthusiastic Executive Committee, much good work should be accomplished during the coming year."

ARMISTICE CAR

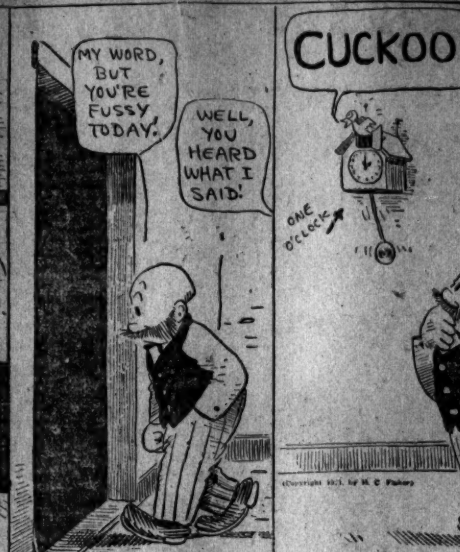

Paris, April 24.—L'Hotel des Invalides, which shelters the body of Napoleon Bonaparte and a great collection of war relics dating from the time of Charlemagne, is shortly to receive also within its walls a modern railway dining car. This car is the one in which the armistice was signed early in the morning of November 11, 1918, and has been presented to the French Government by the Wagon Lits company.

A glass plate has been fixed to the car recording the historic incident and the names of the plenipotentiaries of the armistice which ended the greatest of all wars.

They will be tried at a special hearing shortly.

Samuel Explains Outbreak At Jaffa

(Reuter's Service) London, May 3.—The High Commissioner of Palestine, Sir Herbert Samuel, telegraphs an official account of the recent disturbances at Jaffa (already reported). He states that a labor meeting in the Jewish suburb of Jaffa on May 1 was disturbed by Jewish communists, who were driven back into the mixed Moslem and Jewish quarter.

An affray ensued in which many Jews and some Moslems were killed. Troops were summoned to restore quiet, but disturbances again broke out in the morning, resulting in the deaths of several more Jews and Moslems. Additional troops and police were summoned and this time order was completely restored.

Altogether 20 Jews and 10 Arabs were killed, 170 Jews and 57 Arabs were treated in hospitals for wounds. The troops did not need to fire, and the proclamation of martial law was not necessary. Sixty-six arrests have been made. The rest of the country is quiet.

Wenatchee Due Tomorrow Night; Empress On 7th

The Admiral Liner Wenatchee, which has been delayed for several days in Yokohama undergoing repairs to oil pumps, left Yokohama Tuesday, according to a telegram received here yesterday, and should arrive at Shanghai tomorrow night, or early Saturday morning, dependent upon the stage of the tide.

The Wenatchee will come up the Whangpoo and dock at the China Merchants' Lower Wharf. Should the boat not be able to come up the river Friday night because of low tides, it will arrive Saturday and sail for the south on Monday.

The C.P.O.S. steamer 'Empress' of Japan was due out of Kobe yesterday on its regular schedule, though no telegram had been received at the local office of the progress of the voyage. The Empress is due off Wosung Saturday evening, and will probably sail for Manila and Hongkong Sunday.

Steward Sentenced For Theft On Dilwara

A steward of the P. and O. steamer Dilwara was sentenced to three months' imprisonment by the British Police Magistrate yesterday for theft of Rupees 4,890 from the ship's safe.

Testimony by Captain T. Babb, of the Dilwara, was to the effect that the money was found missing from the safe when the ship was three days out of Bombay, on April 14. Only one drawer of the safe had been rifled, that containing ten-rupee notes. A reward of Rupees 1,000 was offered and at Colombo detectives came aboard to search the ship and watch the crew. There were no results, however, until the Dilwara reached Shanghai and the Customs officials came aboard. Upon their search, Rupees 950 were found in possession of the steward, one Muckbool Ahmed, and the remainder of the stolen money was found concealed under a mattress in a lady's cabin. The defendant's explanation was that he had found the notes under a settee in the saloon and had been afraid to report his discovery for fear of being accused of the theft. In giving sentence Mr. King advised the captain of the ship to take more precautions, the court being satisfied that there were others aboard who were concerned in the matter.

American Woman's Club

Means of stimulating artistic appreciation in children were discussed by Mrs. Guy C. Stockton yesterday at a meeting of the American Woman's Club Mothers' Department held in the Royal Asiatic Society Hall. The speaker declared that art should not mean to children merely a picture on the wall, but a force that can be expressed in anything from a cup to a cathedral. Copies of masterpieces should be shown to children even before they are capable of understanding them, so as to gradually develop their sense of appreciation.

Mrs. Stockton especially recommended the use of Maxfield Parrish pictures for younger children, and also the exquisite colorings of Jules Guerin. Working with crayons gives a child a sense of color values and offers more opportunity for experimental work. Children brought up in China have unusual chances to study porcelains, bronzes, and other masterpieces that are quite distinct from anything found in the West. Mrs. Stockton illustrated her talk by a series of slides. She has prepared a bibliography on illustrative material suitable for art study, copies of which are available for club members and their friends.

The next meeting of the Mothers' Department will take place in the Carlton Cafe on May eighteenth, when Mrs. H. H. Morris is to give a talk on "Problems in Child Training Peculiar to the Orient."

Baer: SAYS "BUGS"

BOMBING THE BOMBARDIER

Tapper Till Taps The Bomber's Wires And Saves Roughtown's Non-Negotiable Prestige

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Dear Sir:
I've listened to your praise of that steampunk dum. You know that Bombardier Guff knocked him flatter than your feet and my pay envelope. Bombardier was a gentle soul like his dog, who would sooner starve a day to death than kill it with kindness.

He took one loose crash at Gink and the Ginkus woke up in a bandage and split bazar.

R. ALAN HUGHES, Boy Ridge.

There is a certain near-beansness element of truth in Mr. Hughes's statement. But the tincture of veracity is very microscopic. We remember this intricate Bombardier Guff. He slid into Roughtown on a famine relief train disguised as a giver of alms. It had been a tough season for the reputable business men of Roughtown, because the great business was in a lull. Money money when they went out for a walk. The Bomber claimed the championship of England and said that he had the ring canvas along to prove it.

When Gink heard about this imposter he started to squeak like a dry axle. He was madder than a woodpecker on a marble tree. His hair flew up and knocked his hat off. His knees trembled with rage and started to play the castnet number from La Paloma. A ferocious Scotchplaid expression broke out on his face.

SHOTS LEAVES OFF

When he got into these paroxysms of corrugated rage no man in the world could catch him in a deadly steelchase. He kept thinking of the Bomber until his perplexity had reached its meridian of anger. He went out into the garden and deliberately jumped on a row of violets and then got a gat and shot all the leaves off a rubber plant.

Even this did not dampen his unquenchable fury. Nothing would make him forget his anger but the sight of his enemy. Even the Champ of Roughtown's longest established foes will admit that Gink never lost his deeply dyed courage until he stood maddened to mush with his quarry.

On this occasion Gink did not follow his usual custom of surrounding the Bomber and tearing him apart from behind. He ignored the challenge. Gink was training for his famous fight with The Glutt. But there was a scuffle in Roughtown who did all the heavy pulling and hauling for the champion. This man was Tapper Till, better known to the Bettilion system as the Guinea Pig. They called him that because they tried everything on him. He was an experimental station.

Every man who challenged Gink had first to take his meanness out on the Guinea Pig, who had been inoculated with calories, vitamins, income taxes, train wrecks, submarine outrages, high rents, and still remained eight points above his lowest quotation.

ENTERED THE RING

The Bomber came into the ring following the usual English custom. He had a mattress strapped on his back to take up the shock of unfriendly thumps. He had an alarm clock all primed up to awaken him at the proper moment to claim victory. He had sick chains on his nose so that his face wouldn't slip off the canvas. His only weakness

SHANGHAI PLAYS NANYANG TEAM NEXT SATURDAY

Civilian Baseballers Will Try Conclusions With Collegian's Outfit

The Shanghai Baseball team will try conclusions with the nine of the Nanyang college, at the latter's grounds next Sunday with the game scheduled to begin at 3 p.m., according to announcement made yesterday.

The college boys are said to have a good team with several regular ball players, and a fairly good practice game for the Shanghai men is looked for.

The Shanghai players will meet Sunday afternoon at the Race Course dressing rooms at 2 o'clock, and after the uniforms are donned, they will be taken in autos to the college grounds.

The Race Course will not be available for play on Saturday because of the last day of the Spring race meeting, and Sunday will be occupied with the erection of the baseball stands. The game at Nanyang therefore fills in with the local team's needs to a nicety.

Practice is to be held through every day by the Shanghai men. It is urged that every player or candidate for a position in this lineup turn out today, and tomorrow for final practice.

The Shanghai team will probably line up as follows:
Terry, Gallop or Devine, p.
C. Jack (Insurance) Smith, c.
Hopkins, lb.
Grove, 2b.
Bills, ss.
Maloney, 3b.
Stovall, Cable Co. Smith Merrill, outfield.

A game with the Shanghai Baptist college, and another with the St. John's college are in store for the Shanghai men as soon as the secretary can find his way clear to book into the future. Dates for these games have not been set because it is understood that the American destroyer fleet with its track teams is due here next week, and it is felt that dates must be reserved for these visiting teams, so as to give opportunity to rush in all of the playing that the destroyer men can stand.

DAIREN WOULD SEND TEAM

The Japanese baseball team at Dairen hopes to secure a series of games in China and Shanghai in May or August.

was a long nose that had to take care of itself in a fight. It was a sort of conduit along which his "voltage" thumps raced to their destination.

After absorbing all kinds of knuckle germs for eighty-six rounds, the Guinea Pig let one fly from the box office and tapped the Bomber on the profile. The Bomber tore off the figure eight and wound up with his future hung over the ropes like the week's wash.

He went back to England claiming everything that wasn't nailed down. The Champion of Roughtown's well smirched honor was smirched a little more and everybody was satisfied. It was a diplomatic ending of what promised to be an international feast on mustard gas and red pepper.

BOWBIDGE FAILS TO SHOW IN TOWN HALL HEADLINER; CARLISLE DRUMMER STARS

Man Touted As Former Champion Of British Mediterranean Fleet Refuses To Fight Martin; Shanghai Boys Perform Well; Mew Stages Great Exhibition

The main event of last night's card of boxing at the Town Hall, that scheduled between Seaman Bowbridge, touted as former middleweight champion of the British Mediterranean fleet, and R. B. Martin of the Shanghai Boxing Club, was not staged. Bowbridge, according to Referee Lowellyn Jones' announcement, "expressed the intention of not going on." Holders of ringside seats asked "Why?" No explanation was given.

It is presumed that the men of the British Cruiser Carlisle were not satisfied with the decisions given at the preceding bouts, both last night and on Tuesday. The chief grievance, it was said last night, was in the matter of the decision in the main bout of Tuesday night, when Seaman York lost his go with A. F. Wilson of the Boxing Club. It was felt by many that a draw decision should have been given.

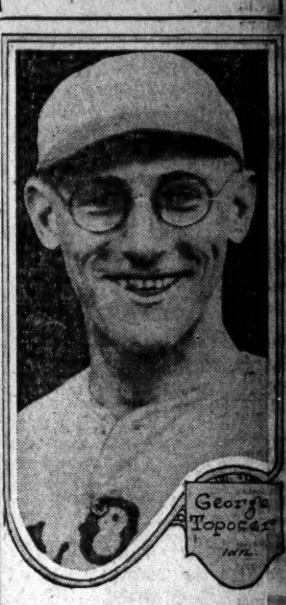

Judge Skinner Turner, who distributed the trophies to all contestants and assistants after the closing of last night's program, spoke of the disappointment of the public at Bowbridge's failure to appear. The majority of the fight fans, he said, had attended the tournament chiefly to see the bout between ex-Champion Bowbridge and Shanghai's clever middleweight. It was to be regretted that the bout was not fought.

There were seven other bouts on last night's card, and two of them had the packed Town Hall in keen suspenseful interest throughout. Drummer Mew of the Cruiser Carlisle gave an exhibition of boxing and fighting that won him the applause of every fan in the hall. The little drummer boy, who was tarded at 89 pounds, looked no bigger or older than a low form school boy himself. He went after Bob Perry of the Shanghai Boxing Club, in their six round bout, with a slide and a shift and a mixture of boxing tricks that established his class in the first round.

The bout opened with preliminary feeling around. Mew was the aggressor. He was after Perry at every step. When the mixing came, however, the trading of wallops was fairly even. No serious damage was done by either though Mew showed to better advantage because of his clever aggressiveness. This was Mew's round.

The second saw Mew producing a left jab which landed cleanly. Every passage lead to a slugging clinch, and the exchange appeared to be even. Perry tried a rib blow at close quarters, which seemed to have some steam behind it. The round was even.

The third round saw the same tactics with a bit more slugging and clinching. Mew still the aggressor. After several strong armed manlings, Perry appeared to be tired and Mew, too, after a little more milling backed off and the round was stalled through in its last minute with both men resting. It was Mew's round.

Clinching occupied the fourth. Mew was still the stronger. He scored often with his straight arms, to the face and body. He had the advantage.

Strong clinching featured the fifth and sixth, with Mew the aggressor. Both men tired after the strong mixing. They sparred off for resting periods. Mew however

CROSS COUNTRY FOR SCHOOLBOYS COMES SATURDAY

Over 50 Lads To Race Over Course In Kiangwan; Four Schools In

The newly formed Shanghai Inter-scholastic Athletic Association will hold its first meeting on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the form of a cross-country run. The event is to be held this year in the morning to enable the boys to attend the Waring Company's presentation of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Lyceum Theater in the afternoon.

The course will be rather longer than that recently followed by the Harriers Club in their Inter-Scholastic College run, and the start will be made from the Hongkew Park while the finish will be at the running track in the Park, the last quarter mile being run around the track to afford an opportunity for spectators to see the end of the run.

This event is open to all members of the Shanghai Inter-scholastic Association and some 50 boys have entered from the Public School, the American School, the Thomas Hanbury School and the French Municipal School.

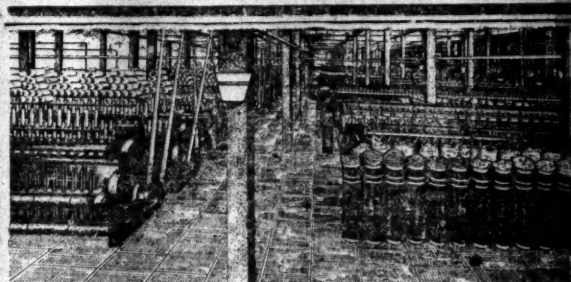

The Oxford and Cambridge Society is very generously presenting a handsome silver shield to be competed for annually and if the form displayed in the Harriers Run on Saturday last is maintained, there should be keen competition on Saturday next to decide which School shall have the honor of first holding this shield.

Later in the month the Association will also hold its annual field and track athletic meeting for the Pearce-Merriman shield. The officials for the cross-country run on Saturday morning are:

Referee and starter, C. D. Giauque.
Finish judge, W. D. Anderson.
Scorer and press steward, S. Hore.
Inspectors, W. W. Bartlett and J. J. Pope.
Time-keepers, G. C. Stockton, T. O. Burgess, and W. C. Divers.
Clerk of the course, D. Drake.

The links are to have eighteen holes. The President has been an enthusiastic golfer ever since he entered the Senate. The McLean course is within the District of Columbia, and within ten minutes ride of the White House. The President today played eighteen holes, part of the time in the rain.

DONT GET CAUGHT, REDS DECALOGUE

Secrecy And Caution Essence Of Ten Commandments For Communists' Guidance

GOVERNMENT KEEPS TAB

Organisation Functioning As Flirtingly As Under 'Ambassador' Martens

Washington, March 10.—The Reds are marking time until the policy of the new Administration toward the radical organisations are disclosed.

There has not been, so far, any conference between Attorney General Daugherty and Secretary of Labor Davis relative to the question of deportations. Under Palmer the Department of Justice thought it had the problem solved by sending the direct actionists out of the country, but Assistant Secretary of Labor Post balked this by wanting the deportation warrants almost as fast as they were issued.

The latest example of this was holding the warrant against Soviet "Ambassador" Martens for three weeks and quashing it after he had left the country, which leaves him free to return unless proceedings are instituted anew.

Meanwhile tabs are being kept on the Reds by the Government agents, but that is all. Among the disclosures is that Mexico is full of Communists ready to slip into this country, but waiting until they know whether they must come secretly or not. There are in the City of Mexico one hundred graduates of the Smolny Institute, the Bolshevik academy for training agitators destined for the United States.

SMUGGLE LOOTED VALUABLES

Contrary to the general impression a vast quantity of jewels and other valuables looted from the aristocracy of Russia have been smuggled through by the Soviet couriers. Sable cloaks and strings of pearls now deck the women of the Communist organisation which is functioning as flirtingly as it did under Martens. The organisation is more adequately supplied with funds than ever, gold having been smuggled in by the couriers who come as sailors, mainly on Italian vessels.

The governmental services estimate the membership of organisations, Communist, I. W. W., Anarchist, etc., at $25,000. They have an elaborate press system, copies of every issue of which are being filed. The Communist bulletin is printed in a different city every issue, the presses being portable so that they can be shipped after every issue to the next point of publication. This plan, adapted from the Nihilist organisations of the old regime in Russia, is generally followed by all the publications.

UNDERGROUND WORK RULES

The latest publication is a neat brochure headed: "Rules for Underground Party Work," and signed "Central Executive Committee, Communist Party of America." It is divided into ten headings, as follows:

"1. Don't betray party work and party workers under any circumstances."

"2. Don't carry or keep with you names and addresses, except in good code.

"3. Don't keep in your rooms openly any incriminating documents or literature."

"4. Don't take any unnecessary risks in party work."

"5. Don't shirk party work because of the risk connected with it."

"6. Don't boast of what you have to do or have done for the party."

"7. Don't divulge your membership in the party without necessity."

"8. Don't lose your nerve in danger."

"9. Don't answer any questions if arrested, either at preliminary hearings or in the court."

WORK RULES AMPLIFIED

Under the second heading the pamphlet says:

"To be caught with plainly written names and addresses of comrades or party workers and places is very nearly the same as betraying them to the Government; at least in effect it is the same. Such names and addresses should never, not for a moment, be plainly written out. They should not be written out in full at all. Carry in your memory as much as you can and let your notes be more memory aids. And whatever you must write down, write it in good code."

"A code for numbers is very easy to use at all times. Make up a word of ten letters, or two words of five each (but none that will make sense, as then they are easy to decipher. Take such as 'Verga, Dasher' (no letters to be used twice), and then use 'v' for 1, 'e' for 2, 'r' for 3, and so forth, 'w' for 0."

The ninth section advises:

"Be sure you have no unnecessary incriminating notes of things with you or in your rooms, when you go to underground party work. Always have a good answer ready for a sudden: 'What are you doing or looking for here?' 'Where are you going?' 'From where?'"

"Hide, or throw away, or destroy, as far as possible, any material evidence, when you see that you will be caught. Of course, you must not do that lightly—you must not do that at the slightest provocation. Before doing that be sure it is not a false alarm."

HOW TO ACT WHEN CAUGHT

The final sub-division gives instructions on how to act when caught.

"If you are arrested, however, that is if they have sufficient evidence, or sufficient grounds for suspicion, that you are a Communist, and therefore, as a deadly enemy of the present order, subject to suppression and imprisonment, law or no law—but first to be made use of in getting hold of other Communists in destroying the whole organisation, if possible—first to be questioned and grilled, to be pumped for various information, to be put through the third degree—then the only correct thing to do, the best thing in the circumstances, is absolute refusal to answer any questions."

"Ask for a lawyer. You have the right for that. And you have the right to refuse to answer questions, whenever they may happen."

"This course of action has been proved best by the experiences of our Russian comrades in their long years of difficult underground struggle against Czarism. They have put their findings into a little booklet: 'How to Act at Hearings' and their unequivocal conclusion and advice is this: 'Don't answer any questions.'"

Secrecy Guaranteed To Aid Wood In His Investigations

Protection To Be Given All Witnesses—Newspaper Correspondents With Party—Labor Opposes Forbes

Manila, (By Mail) April 20.—With the approaching visit of Major General Leonard Wood and former Governor Cameron Forbes, on an inspection trip to the Philippines, testimony both oral and written is being prepared by officials and representative citizens to assist the commission in preparing its report. A proclamation by acting Governor Charles E. Yester, in accordance with instructions from the War Department, states that all such communications will be privileged and will not be published. The purpose of this ruling it is understood, is to prevent intimidation of witnesses.

The commission has also expressed its desire that the usual round of banquets, receptions and personally conducted tours of the islands should be omitted. It is probable, therefore, that no public social functions will be held in honor of the members. A few private functions may be held if the commission has sufficient time to attend.

OTHER OFFICIALS COMING

The inspection will be as thorough as possible under the circumstances, and it is understood that a representative of the Treasury and one from the State Department will accompany the mission.

General Wood and Mr. Forbes will occupy the Malacanang Palace, the official residence of the Governor General, during the investigation.

A detailed program of the subjects to be taken up by the mission has not yet been published, but it is

THE WAY TO ELIMINATE MALARIA

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

To eliminate the cause—not merely the symptoms—of malaria is the right way to get rid of malaria. The cause is parasitically poisoned blood. The only means of permanent cure is through the blood, by purifying and carrying the poison, and thus ridding it of the poison.

Today in every country where malaria exists there are living former sufferers from this dreadfully weakening, distressing disease who gratefully acknowledge that they owe their restored health solely to the new, rich, red blood wafer Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the world renowned Blood Tonic made for them. One of these is Mr. Percy Jansz, of the Construction Department, Ceylon Government Railway, Colombo. Mr. Jansz says:

"Whilst doing inspection duty on the Northern line some years ago I contracted malaria. As a preliminary to each attack I had a feeling of listlessness and my appetite fell away. In a few days I would be aching all over, at the same time becoming icy cold and shivering with ague. This was followed by intense heat, and severe pain throughout the body accompanied by violent headaches. Then I would break into a profuse perspiration which soaked the bed, and so the attacks would gradually pass off, leaving me in an exceedingly weak condition."

"Quinine did me no good whatever, and it was only after I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I began to experience relief. After commencing this treatment my appetite improved, the attacks of ague and headaches and the pains decreased in violence and became less frequent. Indigestion and 'river' which had caused me trouble before, ceased. My spirits improved and I gradually regained lost weight."

"After continuing the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for some time longer all traces of malaria left me and I became as well and strong as ever before. I have been enjoying the best of health since."

For over thirty years Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have been famous as a specific for those disorders which are due to impure, watery blood and debilitated nerves. They are obtainable from dealers everywhere, also post free at $1.50 the bottle, six bottles from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96

Printed Speeches

"For words, like Nature, half conceal and half reveal the soul within."

Tennyson must have had a large acquaintance with the public speeches which were so large a feature of early Victorian life, and it was this experience which enabled him to sum the matter up so succinctly in the above lines.

Which of the ancients was it who invented long speeches at public meetings? We frankly confess we do not know, but he was a wily old gentleman, whoever he was, and we are not surprised that there is no statue to his memory.

As one thinks of the time which is wasted in set speeches, one marvels that in all civilized countries, at least, they are not illegal and punishable with heavy penalties.

But man is a strange animal, and it seems that in the present constitution of society, set speeches are inevitable and the long suffering public sets its teeth and endures in silence, regulating a perfunctory applause according to the popularity and importance of the speaker.

The wise community, however, having suffered in the past will endeavor to mitigate the evil if such alleviation be possible, and the suggestion of the Civic League that the official speeches to be delivered at the annual meeting be published two days beforehand indicates a desire to minimise the local evil in this direction.

Take the case of many ratepayers at the last meeting. The Chairman's speech was heard only in parts as the acoustic properties of the hall leave much to be desired; and the speech took up so much time that, by the end, the hearers had forgotten the beginning. Why waste so much valuable time?

We cannot believe the Chairman enjoyed delivering it. It is an act of heroism to deliver a public speech of this nature. And judging from the facial expressions of the ratepayers assembled they did not appreciate the heroism. So we ask who benefitted by the speech? Now had that speech been in the hands of the ratepayers two days earlier they could have annotated it and marked details on which they might wish to ask questions.

Of course the next step is obvious: if the speech previously distributed would bring such relief from boredom to the ratepayer, why not extend the principle and share that relief with the hard working Chairman of the Council by excising the speech altogether and using the time taken by it in discussion of the points contained in it and in the despatch of other important business?

The majority of ratepayers would, we feel sure, welcome such an arrangement; it would be a relief to the Chairman, and finally it would be a sensible arrangement tending towards efficiency and thoroughness in the annual meeting, which we have always understood was a function instituted for discussion of municipal affairs.

The Spectator

KEEP STILL

What follows is not preaching. It is not aimed to improve your character, nor save your everlasting soul.

It is strictly business. It is intended to give you a suggestion that will be worth money in your pocket, and also bring peace and contentment to your mind. It will be of more actual value in the way of making you feel good, providing you have sense enough to follow it, than a pound of smoking tobacco or a quart of that ancient beverage formerly known as Red Eye.

It is a chunk of advice. It is this:

Never, under any circumstances, to yourself, or to anybody else, indicate, admit or say that another person has hurt your feelings.

This is based upon the primary psychological law that our state of feeling is induced and perpetuated by our habit of expressing our feeling.

Those who continually say they are snubbed really get snubbed, they advertise for people to snub them.

If you talk of being insulted you are laying the ground for being insulted again.

And this is not an appeal to your conscience, your morals or your religion. It is an appeal to your common sense. I do not ask you to be good, to be moral, to do right, or anything of the sort, but merely to repress your expression of feeling and smother all resentment and complaint with the antiseptic mantle of silence.

I do not say to you that you should notice no slight, feel no injury and allow yourself to suffer no humiliation. I do not say that you should not be hurt when another injures you, nor ashamed when he speaks evil of you. That would be telling you to do something you cannot do. It would be preaching, and poor preaching at that.

But I tell you to do something which any human being in the world can do, something simple, plain and practical. For I tell you merely to Keep Still. No matter what may be your sufferings, you can do that.

And particularly Keep Still toward those with whom you are necessarily intimate. Do not allow them to imagine that they can hurt your feelings.

Nine-tenths of the lovers' quarrels and domestic squabbles arise because one or both sides announce injured feelings.

It is impossible to live with anyone and not be sometimes offended. Human nature is too faulty, and hearts are too sensitive, to get along together without occasionally bruising one another. If we take these bruises with a smile, if we are good sports, and heroically refuse to cry out when we are hurt, those about us will be led to appreciate and trust our fellowship.

Nobody wants to associate constantly with anyone whom he is always wounding, even unconsciously.

So clamp your jaws, grip your hands and steel your heart. And Keep Still. You do not need any high morality nor deep principles to succeed at this. All you need is sense.

The reaction upon yourself will be most satisfactory. You will drill yourself in the thing everyone of us needs most, which is self-mastery.

And after awhile you will gather the fruits of self-mastery which are peace of mind, contentment of heart and graciousness of manner.

You will also rid yourself of the wretched weakness and misery of bearing a grudge, and of missing the hope of future revenge.

All this is not advised because it is especially pious nor because you will be rewarded for it in Heaven, but simply because it will enable you to get along in this world much better. It is the easiest way. It is the most sensible way.

Of course it involves a certain amount of self-control, and the moral slob or the victim of self-pity will at once say that it cannot be done. But you can do it.

The people I love best are those people whom I most surely know I cannot possibly wound. I know they understand me, which perhaps is better than knowing that they love me.

The most serene, agreeable, delightful and helpful people I know are the people who act upon this principle which I have laid down.

1821-1921

Lives of great men reached and kept
Are not attained by sudden flight,
But while their companions slept
Were toiling upward in the night.
—Longfellow.

One hundred years ago today a great man died, far away from the land he loved and fought for. The crowds that had cheered him in his success had cried "adieu" to Bonaparte in his failure. Today a united France pays him homage.

Among the eminent persons of the nineteenth century, Napoleon Bonaparte is far the best known, and the most powerful, and owes his predominance to the fidelity with which he expresses the tone and thought and beliefs, the aims of the masses of active and cultivated men.

From various sources, but especially from Bourienne's Personal Memoirs, we gather that when aristocracies were crumbling Napoleon became the representative of the business and industrial classes. The instinct of active, brave, able men throughout the middle classes everywhere—America, England, France—has pointed out Napoleon as the incarnate Democrat. He had their virtues and vices; above all, he had their spirit.

"God has granted to every people a prophet in its own tongue." —From the Koran.

Paris, London, New York, the spirit of commerce, of money, and material power, were also to have their prophet, and Bonaparte was qualified and sent.

He was the idol of common men, because he had in transcendent degree the qualities and powers of common men. He wrought for power and wealth. All the sentiments which embarrass men's suits of these objects, he set aside. "The sentiments were for women and children."

The times demanded a Napoleon, man of stone and iron, capable of sitting on horse back sixteen or seventeen hours, of going many days together without rest or food, except by snatches, and with the speed and spring of a tiger in action; a man with a perception which did not suffer itself to be baulked or misled by any pretences of others, or any superstition, or any heat or haste of his own.

"My hand of iron," he said, "was not at the extremity of my arm; it was immediately connected with my head."

He styled himself the "Child of Destiny" and he believed it. "I could not replace myself. I am the creature of circumstances."

Before his will every obstacle vanished. "There shall be no Alps," he said; and he built his perfect roads, climbing by graded galleries their steepest precipices until Italy was open to Paris. Having decided what was to be done, he did that with might and main. He put out all his strength. He risked everything and spared nothing, neither ammunition, nor money, nor troops, nor generals nor himself.

His grand weapon, namely, the millions whom he directed, he owed to the representative character which clothed him. In the social interests he knew the meaning and value of labor, and threw himself naturally on that side. "When soldiers have been baptised in the fire of a battlefield," he once said, "they have all one rank in my eyes."

Bandages For Chilblains

Here is the treatment with which Dr. L. Clapp of Paris quickly cured many cases of chilblains during the war. He placed a tight elastic bandage either directly over the chilblain or just above it. The former was the more rapid, but also the more painful, and was indicated for a few chilblains on the fingers or sides of the feet, while the latter was more lasting and should be reserved for chilblains on the toes or for multiple or ulcerated lesions.

Lymph For Infectious Fevers

Dr. Artault de Vevey told the Societe de Therapeutique de Paris at a recent meeting that he had had great success in treating nearly a thousand cases of infectious diseases such as influenza and puerperal fever by injecting the patient with his own lymph drawn from a blister. He had also succeeded with it in rheumatism, chorea, facial neuralgia, appendicitis and other such troubles.

40,000 Crimean Refugees On Ships

Major E. J. Swift Tells Of Conditions About Constantinople, Where People Accustomed To Luxuries Are Forced To Contend For Food And Shelter

BY MAJOR E. J. SWIFT

More than 40,000 of the Crimean refugees are still living aboard ships near Constantinople. Every available refugee camp in the Near East is filled to overflowing, and the probabilities are that most of these 40,000 persons will have to remain on shipboard for many weeks to come. The following account of the life of the ship-dwellers is sent by Major E. J. Swift, of San Francisco, on duty with the American Red Cross at Constantinople:

Constantinople, February 15.—

The shipment of 100 tons of relief supplies for refugee hospitals in Gallipoli aboard a refugee boat, the French ship Lorely, which was carrying refugees to one of the camps there. On the voyage I lived the same life that 130,000 Russians from the Crimea are living these wintry days here in the East. I am back in Constantinople again with a deeper appreciation of what these brave and uncomplaining people have gone through since leaving their country early in November.

We steamed out from Stamboul harbor at midnight. The holds were filled to capacity with supplies. The decks and every inch of space to the bridge was occupied with men, women and children, huddled together to keep warm. There was little shelter from the wind, and although I had picked out a place behind a wall of the deck house, to stretch out in my blankets, gusts of wind seemed forever trying to rob me of my warm clothing. Before we were well out into the Sea of Marmora I was on my feet, beating my arms to keep warm, for there was no room to walk upon the crowded deck.

The Lorely is a cargo ship and there are no accommodations for passengers except in the crowded ship's quarters. The docks are flush except for the hatches, and the bridge is forward so that the wind has full sweep. And this sort of ship is typical of the fleet that is housing 40,000 refugees.

COURTESY IS CHEERFUL

A Russian Countess, who stood shivering by the rail, was asked to go to the engine room. "I would rather not take up room, for there are many women with babies who should have the chance to keep warm. I can very well stay here, for it is only for tonight. Tomorrow morning we will be at Gallipoli." Just after daybreak we sighted the mouth of the channel that is the beginning of the Dardanelles. And when the sun came into the sky with a little welcome warmth everyone seemed to feel the hope of a new day. Cans of "corned willy" were produced from the capacious folds of army coats and from some unseen place huge loaves of bread.

There was no water to wash with, but grimy hands and faces are the fashion with refugees.

Shortly before noon we came into Gallipoli harbor, and added another ship to the fleet already discharging there. The little town, which gives its name to the peninsula over which the Allies and Turks fought so fiercely during the war, has the appearance of a shell-wrecked village. Its ruins are the remains of Greek houses burned by the Turks after the Allied attack, and I am told the village was never really shelled.

A French launch came out to arrange for our landing and we went ashore to report to Lieutenant-Colonel Weiller, the French officer in command of the refugee camp at Gallipoli. Our refugees and supplies were landed later in the day.

We pushed our way through the tiny, crowded streets, ankle deep in mud over cobbled surfaces. Every one seemed walking along with no definite direction. Little groups of soldiers chatted in the side streets. We had glimpses of temporary camps in clearings between the houses. Commandant Guyenet of the French Navy, military commander of the peninsula received us and arranged for the unloading of our hospital.

HAVE NO CHAIRS

General Koutenoff, who is the Russian camp commander, received us in a little room in the house that had been assigned to him. There was a desk in the corner, but there were no chairs to sit on, not even one for the general.

"Our principal need at the present time is for the women and children," he said. "Our hospitals need supplies, which you tell me you have brought. We have found four walls for a hospital, and we have doctors and nurses."

While the supplies were being unloaded, I called at a hospital with two hundred patients, mostly with illness contracted through exposure. Most of the hospital cases are still in Constantinople, 5,500 of them being cared for in emergency and city hospitals.

Here there were no beds nor mattresses and only scant coverings. In the corner of each room was a tiny stove, making a desperate effort to give out heat. The room was thick and the air foul, but the nurse would not open the windows because she could not keep her patients warm. They lay on the floor as closely together as space would permit.

The original plan for the camp at Gallipoli—which, like all others, is under the control of the French—called for about 20,000 refugees, but there are already over 25,000 in the camp, and when I left the ships were still being unloaded. The main camp is situated at the foot of a range of hills, four miles from Gallipoli, where long, double-walled hospital tents have been erected under the supervision of British engineers. These tents came from the American Red Cross stores at Constantinople.

The town itself is capable of taking care of only a few of the refugees and it is during the clearing of the refugees from the ships to the camp that the great hardships are experienced.

Many ships came in through the mist and each unloaded its burden of humanity upon the pier. A steady stream of men, with their little packs, here and there a woman and children, with a huge Cosack carrying her bags, pushed through the openmouthed herd crowding the narrow streets. Each group as it came ashore was assigned to a temporary camping space, and into this open field, with the sky for a roof, soldiers and men, women and children, set down their possessions and looked about.

COOKING VERY PRIMITIVE

Little fires sprang up, fed by wood cut with sabres. Occasionally one sees a field kitchen, but generally the cooking is done in gasoline tins. When the rations have been served out and cooked, all gather together, men, women and children, and eat their plain meal. The French have provided ample food, but temporary shelter for the refugees on disembarkation is still woefully lacking.

A heroic effort is being made to get everyone under shelter of some sort. Ruined houses are being roofed, big hospital tents are being pitched and "lean-tos" put up against the sides of crumbling walls.

Buildings of every sort are being utilised. On the hill above the town stand the walls of the Greek church, destroyed by the Turks. Here quarters have been established for women, and where once the priests prayed in the altar space little children are now made comfortable when the rain falls at night. In another section of the town, under the ruined minaret, a huge canvas has been spread to keep dry the floor that once was sacred to Moslem feet.

Along the beach in front of the mosque every day one can see the refugees washing out their clothes in the salt water of the harbor, one piece at a time, because their supply of clothing is so scanty.

Some of the refugees have articles of value which they try to sell, but the city of Gallipoli is not a metropolis and there are few purchasers.

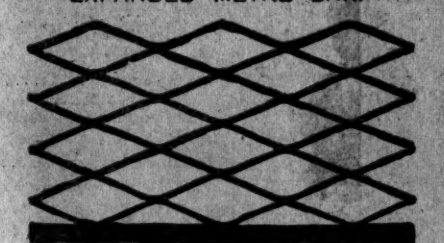

Refugees are strange creatures, particularly the women. Sealskin coats, encasing feminine finery, move along the muddy cobblestone streets, propelled by tiny feet in high-heeled shoes and silk hosiery. Others are more sensibly clad in leather boots, short skirts and excellent types and are bearing the hardships of life in Gallipoli with a smile.

Anecdotes Of The Famous

That witty man, James Smith, of "Rejected Addresses," fame takes the cake with the enormous figure of $1,875 per line, probably the highest sum ever received by an author for his work.

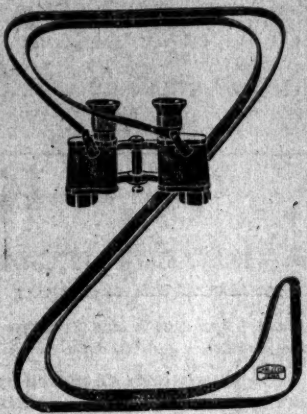

One evening at dinner he met Richard Strachan, the King's printer, who, although badly crippled with gout, conversed so brilliantly that Smith sent him the following tribute:

"Your lower limbs seemed far from stout."

When last I saw you walk, The cause I presently found out When you began to talk. The power that props the body's strength, In due proportion spread, In you mounts upward, and the strength All settles in the head."

On receiving this Strachan added a codicil to his will, leaving the author $15,000.

Talks On Health

By William Brady, M. D.

FOODS WHICH FURNISH IODINE

Iodine is one of the dozen or more elements which are essential to health and life, and it is just as important to know something of the food sources of iodine for the human body as it is to know which foods furnish phosphorus or calcium or iron to the body.

The iodine so familiar as an alcoholic solution called tincture of iodine, is obtained from seaweeds. It has been found present in certain fresh water plants, such as water cress, brook-lime and the blue-leaved water hemlock. There is some iodine in tobacco ash—which is no argument in favor of smoking. It is present in sea water; indeed sea water is probably the original source of all the iodine of nature.

Cod liver oil contains considerable iodine, which is one of the reasons why cod liver oil is often a valuable medicine; vitamins present in cod liver oil are another reason.

In the salt from certain regions there is so much iodine that some investigators of the goitre problem have advocated the exchange of salt from wells far inland for that from wells nearer the sea, where the salt is likely to have some iodine in it. The absence of iodine, or insufficient quantities of iodine in the food is pretty well known to be the cause of simple goitre which is so common in young girls in the Great Lakes basin.

WHERE IT COMES FROM

Much of the iodine of commerce nowadays comes from the Chili salt-peter beds. Considerable iodine is found in the bittern of the salt works of western Pennsylvania. The iodine in seaweed exists, probably, in the combination of sodium iodide.

Ordinary food sources for man are such sea-food as lobster, shrimp, salmon, oysters, crabs, cod and nearly all fresh sea fish; such vegetables as green peas, asparagus, white cabbage, tomatoes, string beans, carrots, lettuce and mushrooms; and such fruits as grapes, bananas, strawberries and pears.

Potatoes contain a small amount of iodine, but bread contains none. Rice contains more than oatmeal.

The quantity of iodine present in such fruits and vegetables varies in different parts of the country and is probably insufficient to maintain the iodine requirements of the growing body, in some sections such as the Great Lakes region. Far from the sea there is apt to be a scarcity of sea-food in the market.

A good way to insure an adequate iodine ration is to mix with the morning cereal, before cooking, some Irish moss, a seaweed obtainable from druggists under the name of chondrus. A teaspoonful or two may be added to the morning cereal regularly.

Very small doses of iodine, in the combination of sodium iodide, given for a regular period each spring and autumn, have proved effective in preventing and curing simple goitre in school children. Two grains a day, for a three week period, is enough. It is best given dissolved in a pint or a quart of the child's drinking water.

Question—Please give a list of 10 of the fruits and vegetables, ordinarily obtainable in the market, that supply iron to the blood. Mrs. G. H. W.

Answer—Lettuce, dried peas, asparagus, dandelion leaves, carrots, cabbage, apples, figs, prunes, raisins, onions, spinach, cornmeal, unground wheat, wheat bran, almond, peanuts. Such foods furnish iron which is more easily assimilated by the blood than any medicinal iron.

Auction Bridge

BY R. F. FOSTER

(Author of Foster on Auction, Made Easy, Foster's Complete Hoyle, etc.)

The conventional double is not confined to the second hand, but may be made by the fourth hand, with the same result as in the other case, the only difference being that when the fourth hand doubles he is asking a player to make a bid who has passed without a bid.

The difference, however, is this. A player who passed up a bid made by an opponent on his right may have good reasons for not saying anything. He may be quite sure that he can save the game against the contract; or he may have his doubts about the expediency of risking a call that promises little or no hope of game for his own side, especially if he has to bid two.

Doubling as an ask for a bid from a partner who has passed up the opportunity to make a free bid is a very different matter; because that partner has not only shown that he has nothing worth bidding on but may not have a trick in his hand. We constantly see a dealer pass, second hand make a bid, and third hand double. The third hand is asking a player to produce tricks enough to go game when he has already announced that he has nothing in particular. Such doubles are very dangerous and should never be made unless the doubler can stand an answer from a practically trickless hand.

Some players decline to double two-trick bids, and for a long time they would not think of doubling bids of three under any circumstances. What is the objection to it? If, as pointed out in last article, the object of the double is to get a contract that promises game, why not bid game? This is one of the things one learns in Contract Bridge, in which the values of the hands are brought very forcibly to the attention of the players.

Another point about bids of three is that they are invariably shut-outs, sometimes called pre-emptive bids. If such bids were not afraid of something they would not try to shut out other bids. Many players assume that any one who bids three spades right off the bat must be very weak in hearts.

As a rule pre-emptive bids in any suit show that the hand is good for little unless that suit is the trump. The natural inference is that if the opponents have anything worth while, all they need do to reduce the pre-emptive bidder to innocuous desuetude is to make some other suit the trump, or call no-trumps.

Here is a case in point:

Z dealt and bid three spades which A and Y passed, but B doubled. This is better than taking a chance on calling four hearts, because if A has to deny the hearts he will be bidding five in something, and that something must be a minor suit. Now it

To Ward Off Ill Health

BY BRICE BEIDEN, M.D.

Overheated living quarters can be the direct cause of pneumonia, and this disease takes an average of a little over one out every eight people. Too much heat can be the cause of pneumonia, and heat without moisture is especially likely to cause serious troubles.

The chief reason for the danger is lack of moisture in the atmosphere of living quarters in that when we leave a dry, hot room which has lowered our vitality and go out of doors into a normally moist atmosphere we are exposed suddenly to what might be called a change of climate, and are likely to catch cold or to contract some serious infection such as pneumonia.

Living continuously in a hot and dry house weakens resistance and causes permanent injury to the glands of the respiratory tract. Under these circumstances the membranes of the nose and throat are exposed to an evaporating process and the mucous glands are worked overtime in the attempt to keep these membranes moist, with a resulting tendency to affections of the nose and throat such as catarrh, and to hardened and devitalized membranes, which have become unable to resist disease germs which come into contact with them.

Not only is the respiratory tract injured, but the whole system becomes weakened and the victim of an arid home climate may become anemic.

VACUUM CLEANING METHODS.

Thorough cleanliness in the home can only be secured by the operation of scientific principles in dust extraction. One of the best and most powerful machines invented for this particular purpose has been secured by us, and we have already achieved excellent results with it.

To the engine are coupled flexible tubes of great length which are fitted with special attachments for the cleaning of carpets, draperies, furniture, pictures, walls, mouldings and crevices.

You will not credit the amount of dust extracted from the average house by this very powerful vacuum engine until you have seen the whirl of dust passing through the glass test tubes.

Toys Of Ages Ago Found In Egypt

Mostly Made Of Wood, Flat, Thin And Of Most Simple Design

The earliest toys of the ancients which have been recovered and preserved are those of the Egyptians. One of the most interesting of these is the figure of what looks like a ram crudely carved in stone, with six perfectly formed cloth sacks piled on its back as a load.

The sacks are filled with sand. The toy was found during an excavation by a party sent out by the Metropolitan Museum of Art at Huk-es-dair-el-Bahri. It is a relic of the Eleventh Dynasty, about 2,160 B. C.

Another find of the Twelfth Dynasty, about 1788 B. C., consists of three very crude dolls. All are of wood, flat, thin and of the most simple design, merely suggesting the outlines of a dressed figure.

Two of them are headless, with straight arms, square shoulders and rounded piece at the bottom to indicate, apparently, the bottom of a gown, while one doll, even older, about 2,200 B. C., is merely a stick about seven inches long, with no pretense of form beyond a lump of clay molded on the stock for a body and another lump for a head. This doll, however, originally had hair of strings and tiny beads of clay.

Another doll of the same period found in the north pyramid at Lisht is surprisingly well moulded in correct human form, and has arms, legs and feet and a well-sculptured head and face with Egyptian headdress. It is of clay and well preserved.
